Aims and Scope

The JCR aims to provide an international forum for the interchange of information and ideas relating to operations management and production management in the construction industry. Market and policy papers introducing and analyzing the operational and institutional setting, the supply side of real estate, policy issues and related laws and regulations of construction markets are also welcomed.

JCR is an international journal published on a quarterly basis. The aim of this journal is to explore the interface between academic research and practical application by disseminating new research findings alongside articles related to everyday professional practice. Papers are published in two sections, Academic Papers and Practice Papers. Papers are refereed to the highest academic standard through double blind refereeing procedures.
